P-prog-rock tycoon turned warm-spirited philanthropist, David Gilmour, is no stranger to grandiose rock spectaculars. After replacing the mentally-ill Syd Barrett in psychedelic rock heroes Pink Floyd, Gilmour adopted an increasingly central role in the group and was the main driving force behind Pink Floyd’s elaborate tours for their greatest hits album, ‘The Wall’ and ‘Deliverance’, to name a few. After the departure of founding member Roger Waters, Gilmour collaborated increasingly with light show guru Marc Brickman, and the Floyd became one of the first bands to use a travelling light show. Brickman’s dazzling lightshow is retained for this massive Royal Albert Hall concert. Gilmour himself, who cuts an unassuming figure clad in a plain black shirt and tie, is joined by legendary pop-chameleon David Bowie, whose band's Soft Machine mainman Robert Wyatt and David Crosby
