

Floyd rescue for damsel in distress

SINGER Judith Owen, right, who performs with Ruby Wax in her show Losing It, had a microphone stand malfunction at a 5 x 15 talk at the Tabernacle — she called for help and up jumped an audience member with some expertise, who got it fixed in no time at all. It was none other than David Gilmour, of Pink Floyd.

Judith said she didn't know who he was, although she thought she probably should. Journalist Jon Ronson, who had talked earlier about spotting psychopaths, tweeted that this proved that Gilmour certainly wasn't one and said he was willing to provide a certificate.
